Show HN: Pong out of 512 URLs from a Socket.io connection - CrazedGeek ===== mjn Nice. One question, though: from looking through the server, it looks like this mostly operates by sending the stream with socket.write() rather than socket.send()? Wasn't the point of socket.io to try to automate this behavior with the event loop, reducing boilerplate? Also, the loop does a lot of work to ensure it's sending only one packet at a time, but sends multiple pong frames in a row. Why? ~~~ CrazedGeek > Wasn't the point of socket.io to try to automate this behavior with the > event loop There is, but that's not quite what I'm trying to do. Also, there's a lot of snippets of uninteresting, inconsistent, and, well, horrible code in the socket.io event handlers (particularly with many connections), and it would make sense to run the entire app in only one (or a few) event handlers, in
